Background:
Japan has implemented technical assistance focused on civil laws and the enactment and revisions of a code of civil procedure that are the basis of all economic activities in a market economy. Although great strides have been made in the development of these fundamental laws, there is a need for revisions that reflect socio-economic development and improvements in subordinate codes, etc. as well as the need for organization between cabinet orders and ministerial ordinances. In addition, there is a need to increase human resources capable of managing and executing these laws. Based on this perspective, assistance was provided to implement a course on Japanese laws at the Vietnam National University in the past. Against this background, it is expected that Japan will greatly contribute to effectively resolving the above issues if knowledge about Japanese laws and its judiciary system were acquired, and the task of legislation in Vietnam including the enactment and execution of lawmaking and judiciary measures were carried out with a comparative legal perspective. In addition, having university personnel experience law and legal education in Japan will lead to improvements in Vietnam's law and legal education as well as disseminate knowledge about Japanese laws, and it will contribute to improving the quality of human resources over the long term.
